WORD MISERS

A new kind of miser has been discovered—the one who hoards his words.

According to Claire Soule Seay, University Extension division lecturer in Los Angeles the man who hoards his words is as unwise as he who hoards his gold.

"For every word most people use," she says, "there are five to ten stored away and never used. As we go through life we accumulate words—some of them valuable, some of them worthless. We store them in the mind's chest, close down the lid and ignore them. This is my plea to all my students: take out the valuable words and put them in circulation as worthy currency. However, we must not act like nouveau riche spenders and be ostentatious, but spend with discrimination and get full value."

LIFE-SAVING GAS

We have never thought of natural gas except in the pleasing light that it has decreased our monthly bills. Perhaps our vision has been of the mercenary kind, for a coroner in Iowa has come forward with the statement that its installation in that city has resulted in the saving of many lives.

For three years Davenport, Iowa, had the unenviable distinction of leading all cities in the United States in per capita suicide tabulation, over half of which were via the gas route. Last year the percentage shot downward, thanks to natural gas.

"It was too easy," according to the coroner, "for old men and women to settle themselves comfortably in a rocker, turn on the gas and forget about everything. The change to natural gas, de-

BLONDE TESTIFIES FOR DAVID LAMSON

MRS. KELLEY DENIES ALL AS WITNESS

SAN JOSE, March 27.—(UP)—Blonde Sarah Kelley, called in a surprise move as the defense opened its battle to save David Lamson from the gallows, today suitably denied every major State claim that she was the "love motive" for Allene Thorpe Lamson's murder.

Under the careful questioning of Defense Attorney Edwin V. McKenzie she struck directly at the prosecution's carefully knit story of her acquaintance with Lamson.

She denied that Lamson, then sales manager for the Stanford University Press, bought her expensive silk stockings and lingerie shortly before Christmas, 1932. She said they were purchased for her by Paul Lehman, now in Mexico City.

WERE ENGAGED

"We were engaged at the time," she explained.

Two prosecution witnesses from Sacramento testified that Lamson purchased the articles for Mrs. Kelley.

"Were you on or near the Stanford campus the night of May 29 or the morning of May 30, 1933?" McKenzie then asked.

NOT PRESENT

"Absolutely not," Mrs. Kelley emphatically answered. She said she played bridge with Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Ray in Sacramento.

CONTEMPT FINE IS SET ASIDE

COLUSA, March 27.—In a decision which held that a district attorney of any county can subpoena witnesses before a Grand Jury only on order of the Grand Jury, the Third District Appellate Court yesterday set aside the judgment of contempt of the Colusa County Superior Court in the case of Maurice Peart, Grimes.

The decision, which automatically freed Peart from bond and payment of the fine, held that District Attorney Ralph Rutledge was without jurisdiction in the matter. It stated that ample proof had been given that Peart was actually present during the time he was being sought in San Francisco.

The DAILY WASHINGTON

MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Old news throughout the country don't know it yet, but the Townsend Old Age Pensioners are seriously dividing themselves.

A group still sticks by the good old original pension plan, insists on the figure of $200 a month or nothing.

Other group prefers a modified plan, has been working with congressmen to put it through at the present session.

This compromise provides that the pensions to be paid shall be neither $200 a month, nor $150 a month, nor any other fixed sum, but whatever amount can be raised by the proposed 2 percent sales tax, plus other minor taxes. The plan still provides that those receiving the pension must spend it within a certain period of time, thus putting money in circulation.

This compromise plan got as far as a mimeographed release by the Townsend headquarters in Washington. A new bill was prepared for Congress. Copies were distributed to the press with Townsend's approval.

Then suddenly protests began to come in. There were not many of them, but they were violent in tone. Townsend suddenly backtracked, withdrew his mimeographed statements, decided to stand by $200 monthly or nothing.

The compromise plan however, still goes on. Nearly 100 Congressmen are behind it, and the bill would have a good chance of passing the House if the Townsends were united.

Many of them seem more interested in the Townsend Clubs as a source of future political power and as a means of present livelihood than in framing a bill acceptable to Congress. The original Townsend Plan will not pass.

Press photographers, who watch the popularity index of notables, find a sharp drop in demand for pictures of the President.

They point to the experience of radio station WOR in Newark, N. J. This station, celebrating its stepping of power, offered listeners free lithographs of President Roosevelt. Expecting a big demand, they made a life commitment.

But no bulging mail sacks arrived next day, or the day after, or any time. The public did not ask for pictures of the President.

WOR finds itself "long" on Roosevelt, with stacks of pictures it cannot dispose of.

PERKINS CONGRESS FEUD
Miss Perkins isn't the only member of the Roosevelt Cabinet having trouble on Capitol Hill.

Miss Frances Perkins is also under fire. The title of this controversy has appeared in the press, but in fact, it is far more bitter and serious than the war on Farley.

At Perkins' personally unpopular on Capitol Hill. Farley is being attacked by only Senator Huey Long. Miss Perkins, on the other hand, is dealing with two major committees, the Senate Labor Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee.

With both bodies the cause of their hostility is essentially the same—resentment against Madame Secretary's bossy manner and her attempts to extend the bureaucratic jurisdiction of her department.

The Ways and Means Committee revolves about the social security bill.

As sent to Congress by the White House, the bill provided social security should be administered by the Labor Department.

But the committee voted this, placed the program under an independent board.

Whereupon Miss Perkins laid aggressive siege, bombarding the committee with demands that it restore the original administrative features of the bill.

This the committee refused to do. Finally its members became so irked that they demanded Miss Perkins' exclusion from their conference with the President on the measure.

Miss Perkins' trouble with the Senate Labor Committee is over the Wagner Labor Dispute Bill. Testifying before that committee, she declared in favor of the measure. But she demanded a number of changes, chiefly an amendment putting the permanent Labor Relations Board under her department instead of being an independent body as the bill provides.

This is opposed by Senator Bob Wagner, author of the bill, Francis Biddle and Lloyd Garrison, present and former chairman, respectively, of the National Labor Relations Board.

They contend that the board must be completely independent, and not subject to possible political interference and domination under the Labor Department.

Miss Perkins' persistence has caused a sharp split between her and the liberal sponsors of the bill. They are openly accusing her of engineering as chances of enactment.

TACOMA, Wash., March 27.—UP.—One hundred and twenty bushels of oysters intended for cocktails were spread between Tacoma and Olympia today when sideboards loosened on a truck and the bivalves shook onto the highway.

FRED ASTAIRE IS STAR OF FILM AT FOX

Remorse in a Paris town shop is the motif of "Roberta," the colorful pictureization of Jerome Kern's musical stage hit, which opens at the Fox theater today. Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers and Gene Kelly are featured in the film.

Miss Astaire, who is a dancer, is the Kern song "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes." Astaire and Rogers have a dance routine that is supposed to be more difficult than the one they did in "Flying Down to Earth" and "The Gay Divorcé." Astaire also reveals a new talent by playing a piano.

The story of "Roberta" revolves about the coming-of-age of an all-American football player and his self in after he has inherited a small town shop in gay Paris. A spectacular fashion show, in which a boy of America's most beautiful girls display the most chic of feminine finery as well as their own natural beauty charms, is a feature of the production.

Fred Astaire, famous dancer is one of the stars of "Roberta" which will be at the Fox theater today. Costarred with Astaire are Ginger Rogers and Irene Dunne.

WHAT AN UPROAR

Black Sennet couldn't have done better. A Portland thief stole $5 from a bakery cash register, was caught by employees and while they argued what to do with him he broke away, grabbed a tray of pastries and fled. Baker Domestic Mail and a passerby gave chase. The thief looked back to see if pursuers were near, ran into a telephone pole and knocked himself out. As Manners and his aide were gathering up the silver that fell from his hand, the thief recovered, stuffed a cake into his mouth and escaped on the rear of a passing streetcar.

Funds Assure Navy Of Treaty Strength In '42

WASHINGTON, March 27.—UP.—The House today passed in rapid succession, four bills destined to help the United States Navy reach treaty strength in 1942.

One authorized expenditure of $25,000,000 to bolster naval defense, chiefly along the Pacific and in the Canal Zone. The authorization included $10,000,000 for a floating dry dock at Pearl Harbor, T. H., $4,500,000 for a drydock at Puget Sound, $3,500,000 for a drydock at Mare Island and $2,500,000 for submarine base facilities at Coco Solo, C. Z.

Another bill, passed without opposition, provided for the training of 500 youths annually to enter the naval air service. The young men to be known as aviation cadets, will train for one year at the Florida naval base, spend three years in active duty at sea and then return to the reserve list.

A third measure authorized adding 1,932 officers to the navy's present 6132. The increase will be made gradually, ending when the navy reaches treaty strength.

The fourth bill provided for retirement of certain officers among the higher grades in the Marine Corps so as to do away with the "hump" that has prevented advancement of lower grade officers.

Girt Tells Of Nelson's Deeds In S. F. Court

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—UP.—The girl whose sweetheart, John Paul Chase, was sent to prison for killing a Federal agent, told new incriminating details today of the desperate hunt for desperadoes across the United States.

She was Sally Bachman, shapesly waitress, who turned State's evidence and left the stand with tears welling in her eyes, to face hours of cross-examination tomorrow in the Nelson-harboring trial.

Her testimony was the third high point of the day in the amazing trial. The other two came as the name of John McKay, it was "big shot" flashed into the testimony, and as 150 spectators stamped for seats, injured a two persons slightly and a tramp guard.

Biting her lips, Miss Bachman followed Joseph "Fatso" Negri's lead in turning State's witness. She told of wanderings with the gang across the country, sleeping under blankets at night, preparing food at the roadside.

Occasionally, she said, they ate in restaurants, but Nelson, then Public Enemy No. 1, never went to a restaurant.

HUGE RANCH IS LOST BY COL. MILLER

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 27.—UP.—Colonel Zack T. Miller, who once defended his famous 104 Ranch with a gun, tonight apparently had lost it before a sheet of legal documents and creditors' petitions.

The pioneer Oklahoma cattleman was fighting to retain control of the remnants of a vast cattle empire where the modern-day rodeo was invented to display stock.

Miller and his cowboy attorney, Sid White, heard Judge Edgar S. Vaughn refuse them debt relief under the Frazier-Lemke farm credit bill, which they had invoked in a last stand effort in Federal court.

Miller expected to appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, but this move was believed hardly more than a gesture from a man who will not stop fighting.

Vaughn's decision means that the property which took its name from its size—101,000 acres—will be parceled out into a patchwork of farms and oil drillings. Already foreclosures had stripped the ranch of 17,000 acres.

CHAPTER I

UNCLE NATHAN'S musty old parlor called to mind vividly the eccentric old man who had lived a shut-in life for so many years. His worn, red plush chair still stood by the window. Mary Dean felt a little lump rise in her throat. She had fought with Uncle Nathan a good deal during the last few years, and now that he was gone, she regretted it. Carmie De Loss, cool and blond, came in from the library. She had been Uncle Nathan's secretary. She handed a brown envelope to Attorney Everitt Sloan and sat down in a chair well back from the group at the big table.

He settled his derby down on his ears and stepped out onto the porch. "She can break that sort of will!" Don said angrily. "If she were a wife or a daughter, she might, but being a more distant relative, no." Everitt Sloan bowed and proceeded to his car. "You can't do it, Mary," Don said, facing her. "Jarred Marsh has something to say about it." There were tears in her eyes. "And Don, Jerry and Ann are in the middle of the school year at expensive schools. I have their future to think of." "Marsh will jump at the chance to marry a million, or I miss my guess," Don's handsome face was flushed. "You must go now, Don—I must think this over," Mary said, gently pushing him toward the door.

Don thrust his hands into his pockets and strode out of the house. One clenched fist was closed over a little square jewelry box. He had intended to ask Mary to marry him. He had been sure old Nathan would eye her off with a small amount, giving the big share of his fortune to Jerry and Ann. Mary had quarreled with her uncle, had taken a job—which she had only recently given up—and had been independent of him for the past two years. But now the way old Nathan had contrived to force Mary to bow to his wishes made Don boil.

A clause of the will that had slipped past Mary in her confusion rose vividly in Don's mind. "Said Mary Dean and Jarred Marsh shall live together as man and wife for at least five years," Don ground his teeth. "The old devil!" he muttered.

receive no part of my fortune, not in such event shall Jerry Dean or Ann Dean receive any part of my fortune." It was to go, in that case, to an institution that was named. Everitt Sloan coughed and paused.

Mary stared at the glasses perched upon the slender bridge of the lawyer's nose. The words shocked and stunned her. She had half expected Uncle Nathan to leave her out, but he had always been fond of Jerry and Ann. Mary the dark young man across the table? Her eyes shifted to him, and she saw that he was plainly upset. Then she looked at Carmie De Loss and wondered, almost angrily, how she could sit so calm and expressionless.

Mr. Sloan folded the will and shoved it back into the brown envelope. He laid it on the table and looked about him uncertainly. "Odd document," he said. "Very odd."

"I'll say it's odd!" Don could not restrain himself. "I hardly know what to say," Jarred Marsh said, with hesitation.

Mary could say nothing. A leaden weight seemed to be pressing down on her. Would she have to do as Uncle Nathan desired, if Jarred Marsh would agree? The part about Ann and Jerry had her trapped.

Mr. Sloan was on his feet, peering around for his ancient derby hat. Jarred Marsh nodded his dark head, and Mary colored a little. Mr. Sloan took the stiff document from the envelope and scanned its first page.

"A nice will to prove. Written in long hand," he said. "Snapping the paper out flat, he began. His dry voice clicked rapidly through the weighty paragraphs of legal language. The bulk of the estate was divided equally between Mary and her younger brother and sister, Jerry and Ann—but only on a certain condition. The lawyer paused and frowned, then went on.

"The following shall be binding upon my niece, Mary Dean. It is my wish that said Mary Dean marry Jarred Marsh, son of my close and trusted friend, Jim Marsh. Should said Jarred Marsh refuse, to obey this wish, she shall

FORMER LOCAL GIRL MARRIED AT S. F. SUNDAY

Miss Muriel I. Marvin, popular Martinez girl and former Richmond resident, was married to James Russell Hopkins of San Francisco at San Francisco on Sunday, friends learned yesterday.

Rev. D. A. Hoover officiated at the services which were attended by relatives and friends.

The bride, a graduate of Alhambra high school in Martinez, attended the Richmond schools before moving to Martinez with her family about eight years ago. Her parents are William C. Marvin, former member of the Richmond fire department, and Mrs. Marvin of Martinez.

In recent months, the bride has been a student nurse in the French hospital, San Francisco, and it was there that the couple met and the romance started some time ago, when Hopkins was a patient in the hospital.

The couple will establish their home in San Francisco where Hopkins is employed in a garage as a mechanic. He has lived in the bay region for six years, coming here from Greenbro, Fla., where his parents, Rev. and Mrs. James Hopkins reside.

JOBLESS JOAN GIVES UP HER PLEA IN L. A.

LOS ANGELES, March 27.—UP—Red-headed Claire Purdy, California's young "jobless Joan of Arc" tonight abandoned her efforts to intimidate the Board of Supervisors into giving her "representatives of the Unemployed" a voice on the Citizens Relief Committee, but announced she would "be back again—and better prepared."

Mrs. Purdy led several hundred followers into the city hall in a mass protest against refusal to recognize her "committee" in relief councils, but police dispersed the crowd without violence.

The young girl who has set for herself the task of rallying California's jobless army announced she would form a group to "work out a plan."

Mrs. Purdy, known as "the flame" among her cohorts, is a vitriolic orator, and police confessed she had the power of "making the mob do just what she wants it to do."

PLAYING THE GAME

The Chamber of Commerce is business insurance, accomplishing great good for Richmond at a time when constructive action is needed.

A man's strict attention to his own business is not enough. Individual business will not improve until general conditions are bettered. The Richmond Chamber of Commerce is part of a nation-wide movement working toward that end.

Practically every forward-looking move for the improvement of Richmond either originates with the Chamber of Commerce or is studied by the Chamber in conjunction with other community leaders and elected officials. Thus the Chamber has its hand on the pulse of community life.

The Chamber of Commerce works in the closest cooperation with the City Council, and several councilmen are Chamber directors. This means cooperation and gives the Chamber strength it could not attain by itself.

Now is the proper time for business to present a united front. The Chamber of Commerce is the medium.

A Chamber of Commerce membership is a badge of civic loyalty, a sign that one is an active player in the great and thrilling game called Progress.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By C. N. CHRISMAN, M.D.

Curing a Cold Means Getting at the Areas Affected and Treating Them the Right Way

The important thing in attempting to cure a cold is to begin where the cold began. Most people make their worst mistakes right here. Instead of doing something really definite just as the cold did in one place or another, they open up where the infection cut off and warming the area that has turned cold we say, "Oh, I'll be all right!"

When the nose gets stopped up, we carry an extra handkerchief and blow repeatedly, putting extra pressure on the tissues already congested. If we are hoarse, we keep clearing our irritated throats and trying to talk naturally. "Stiffness" is probably the first development in a cold and not far from the worst. Try to take care of the nasal discharge as gently as possible, without such special effort as to blow it out. Most of the trouble lies in the un-famed nasal passages are asthmatic in character.

Desires soothing the irritated membranes, they contract the tissues and aid in retaining the free passage of air. Use these remedies carefully and make every effort to keep the sinuses open. Don't despise the pungent ointments and salves that may be rubbed on the outside. They are counter irritants and bring the blood back into the stuffy region where the congestion had blocked its circulation.

If you are fortunate in possessing a health lamp, especially an infra-red ray, take thirty minutes off and stretch out on the couch. Turn the lamp directly on the cut-up part of the body. This is done early enough as the attack, you may be able to abort it. Treat a crick in the neck or a crimp in the shoulder the same way.

Some careful advice must be related to the nose and throat of the discharge which is always a disagreeable accompaniment of a cold. Not only that, it is dangerous, encourages the growth of bacteria. There are many excellent nose and throat washes, but if there is nothing else at hand put a teaspoon each of salt and soda in a pint of warm water. As for a rasping throat, it should go on the retired list if possible. Hoarse and congested vocal cords should never be used until their elasticity is restored. Usually in a severe cold, there is a throbbing headache, at least a dull one. The use of headache remedies is not at all taboo, providing you have done something to relieve the cause of the headache.

When the system has been cleaned out and the breathing space opened up, the headache is likely to disappear, too. For actual cold remedies, you will probably hear of as many different kinds as you have friends and interested acquaintances who chance to hear that you have a cold.

If you can't go to bed, which is the best place for you, you can be very careful of yourself wherever you are. You will get your neighbors, but from your physician. This is because he is equipped to check up on your heart and lungs to find where special attention is needed.

The chief trouble with self-medication is that we usually are after quick results. Most ready-made remedies contain large percentages of alcohol. Alcohol has an unquestioned tendency to "pep up." Its combustible quality insures its prompt assimilation and a quick reaction in bodily warmth and heart stimulus.

Its effect is likely to be temporary, and perhaps it was not a good time to step up the heart action when it was already having a hard time due to congestion in the lungs.

We are not to forget that the development of a cold is due to accumulated waste and poison in the system. Get rid of these, use water inside and out, keep to a moderate and easily digested diet. Breathe as pure air as possible, which means keep away from crowds. Cuddle yourself for a day or two and take it easy as you can.

OUR SHOULDERS AND ARMS NEED NEW ATTENTION

By JACQUELINE HUNT

FROM now on, arms and shoulders are going to be very much exposed by sheer gowns and gay little sleeveless sports frocks. Unless you have reason to be proud of yours, you should plan to give them some extra care during the next few weeks and see that they get some exercise if they need it.

Excess flesh has a way of accumulating on the upper arms and across the shoulders of many women, and flabby fat in such regions is really more destructive to beauty than if you were generally a bit plump. Exercise is the quickest and surest way of improving the muscle tone and smoothing away the bulges.

Here are some good exercises for the purpose:

1. Stand with your feet comfortably apart, chest high, back straight and the arms down at the sides. Now count and counting will help with this exercise. Bring the arms sharply up, elbows straight and fingers extended to a level with the shoulders. Keeping the fingers straight, bend the elbow so the thumb is are opposite the armpits, now twist the shoulder muscles to bring the hands up by the sides of your head and finally stretch the arms as high as you can above the head. Reverse the exercises, continuing the count, until you drop your arms to your sides on eight. After a little practice you should be able to go through with the motions rapidly.

2. Stand erect with the knees together and the arms at the sides. Now begin and swing the arms rapidly up and down, alternating first one and then the other.

3. Stand erect with the legs together and the arms held stiffly out at the shoulders. Now simultaneously swing the arms down, crossing them in front of the body. First have the right arm cross over the left and then the left over the right.

4. Standing erect, swing both arms rapidly, windmill fashion. This last exercise is simple but is good for taking down pads of flesh across the shoulder blades and for strengthening the muscles.

When you cleanse your skin at night, give the arms extra rubbing to remove bits of horny skin and make your arms as soft and fair as you wish. Two or three times a week, massage them with a softening cream, then wipe off the excess cream and snack good with cold skin tonic.

Use a bleaching cream or lemon juice for the elbows and knuckles.

King Prajadhipok of Siam Sits on His English Estate and Feels His Turmoil Is Finished

THE entrance of the Gods into Valhalla, with the world lying in ruins and the vision of a special paradise ahead, was the magnificent creation of Wagner and the Norse poets before him. This awe-inspiring and beautiful picture probably represents somewhat the feeling now being experienced by the former King Prajadhipok of Siam, who recently abdicated his throne.

The King had a dream of a constitutional monarchy which gave democratic rights to his subjects—a sort of beneficent autocracy. But this plan was attacked by Siamese officials. It was kicked here and there, and Prajadhipok found that the world for him was becoming a mere mess.

He came to the throne nine years ago as successor to his brother, who died in November, 1925. With his beautiful queen he ruled the land in an amiable way, introducing many modern improvements in a country which had heretofore been exceedingly backward—almost primitive. (The King is an Ox-

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "My face is very long and thin with a high forehead. I have such bushy, thick eyebrows that make my face look a little grotesque. Can you tell me how to pluck my brows to improve my appearance?"

Pluck enough of the hairs from your eyebrows to give them a neater line and emphasize the straightness. A straight line will make you more becoming than an arch. But do not try to make a thin line of your brows or they will look unnatural. I would suggest that you also change your hairdress. You might try a little soft, curled bang that hides your natural hairline. Have a little softness behind and below the tips of your ears. Keep your route well up beneath your eyes and out toward your temples, and use just a suggestion of it on the tip of your chin.

QUESTION: "I am a redhead with a pinkish skin and eyelashes and brows that are almost white. I know I would look better if my lashes and brows were dark, but black and brown mascara seems so artificial that I am discouraged. Have you any suggestions?"

There is a new eyebrow pencil and mascara intended for women of your coloring. It is something of an auburn tint that seems quite natural with all shades of red hair. If you can't find this in your local shops, try using a small application of light brown mascara and pencil.

Tasty and Nourishing Dishes for Today

Good Assortment of Canapes Essential When Entertaining

By JUDITH WILSON

WHETHER you are entertaining at afternoon tea, a formal meal, or a homey Sunday night supper in the friendly atmosphere of your kitchen, dainty and varied canapes are an essential. Serve them with a well-chilled fruit or vegetable juice cocktail with tea or with a more potent beverage.

Cheese Appetizers

Cheeses are essential to fancy appetizers. For high flavor use such cheeses as Camembert, Brie, or Blue. Use bread that is slightly stale, cut in thin slices in squares, circles, fingers or fancier shapes. Then toast one side quickly or fry it in butter until lightly browned and crisp.

Spread with Lederkrantz or Camembert cheese, or spread with well-seasoned cream cheese and garnish with stuffed olives, bits of poultry or finely chopped parsley. You will have appetizers to meet every taste.

For hearty sandwiches: the men will like spread slices of rye bread with butter and then thickly with Lederkrantz cheese. Cover with thinly sliced onion that has been marinated in equal parts olive oil and vinegar and salt and pepper. Cover with another slice of bread and garnish the plate with pickles or olives.

Prunes, figs or dates stuffed with a highly flavored cheese and served on lettuce hearts make a good salad or appetizer.

Anchovy Canapes

Get the little tips or plaques of rolled anchovies upon which to well. Squeeze a little lemon juice over them and place on small squares or rounds of toasted breads or the canape crackers. Garnish with tiny pickled onions about the size of a pea.

Caviar Baskets

These are colorful and delicious and belong on a plate of assorted hors d'oeuvres, but they had best be served at a sit-down meal. Cook eggs until hard, chill, and peel. Cut a slice from the thick end of each so they will stand on end, then cut away part of the white to form a basket with a handle. Remove the yolks, mash and mix with a well-seasoned mayonnaise, a few drops of lemon juice and a small amount of grated onion. Mix with a little real caviar and use to fill the baskets. Garnish each one with a tiny sprig of parsley.

Beggars on Horseback

Get rather small oysters, drain well and roll each one in a half strip of bacon. Fasten securely with toothpicks. Broil, turning frequently until the bacon is brown. Pass these sizzling hot, and have plenty of them. If by the toothpicks to cut.

You and Your Child

MOST CHILDREN CAN BE TAUGHT STORY-TELLING

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

DONALD was clamoring for a story. It did not matter to him that mother had a headache and was asking to be excused. At three-and-a-half a child does not know what a headache is, unless he happens to be having one himself at the moment. And then naturally he will concern himself only with his own headache.

Mother handed Donald a toy. "Here darling, try to amuse yourself today. I'll tell you two stories tomorrow." But Donald, creature of habit that he is, demanded his story. He felt that he had one coming to him. Wasn't it the afternoon rest period? Didn't mother always tell him at least one story at this time of day? It took a spanking finally to bring him around to a more reasonable state. Then mother took a couple of aspirin tablets, and placing a cool, wet bandage over her eyes lay down beside him.

There is no moral to this story. The incident merely proves what many mothers already know: That it is not always convenient to tell a child a story when he wants to hear one. One may be ill or busy or, plainly, not in the mood. Many things may happen during the course of a day to try a mother's strength and patience.

At such times if a child can make up his own stories it will be found a distinct advantage. Many children who have a talent for story telling never get a chance to tell stories themselves. You must suggest it. It won't occur to them, unless you do.

My advice to parents is, don't do all the story telling, even when you are in the mood. Say, "Now it is your turn." If Donald's mother had practiced this, she could have handed him his head, but she had that headache, suggesting that he tell himself stories this time from the pictures. I am sure it would have worked.

With the proper encouragement any child can acquire the knack of making up his own stories. It develops fluency of ideas and expression that will serve him throughout life. If it sounds silly, listen anyway. It's what he thinks about, and may even help you to understand him better.

Short Cuts

When cooking cauliflower, cabbage and other vegetables, if you have an electric cooker, don't forget to use it. With such a cooker, and by placing it on the back porch or window ledge, you can do the cooking on the outside and keep odors out of the house.

Recipes always call for level measurements unless "heaping" is specified.

Before you start painting, it pays to invest in a good brush. And to keep it in good condition always remember to clean it with turpentine after using paint.

MODERN WOMEN

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

A Girl to Be Popular With Men Should Also Be Liked by Members of Own Sex

SO MANY letters come to my desk from girls who want to know how they can be popular with men. None of them ever want to know how they can be popular with women, and if they knew it, that is the more important of the two.

A woman cannot get anywhere socially without the good will of other women. Men can take her, but she rarely gets attention to pay attention to her, but that doesn't do anything for you socially. It's women who must throw open their doors to women. A man may be successful occasionally in coaxing an invitation for a woman from his mother, but he rarely succeeds in coaxing one from his wife, unless, of course, for some business reason.

A girl can have a very nice, gay time of it going about with a man who takes her to theaters, movies, dinners. But if they have no social life in common, if they cannot go to the houses of their friends, there is something wrong somewhere.

Since invitations come from women, don't girls see that it is more important for them to be friends with women? The chances of meeting new men are considerably greater if one has the friendship of the houses of friends than it is otherwise.

MEN have a different viewpoint

on girls who have women friends, and therefore social contacts, than girls who have no feminine friends.

It's a pretty good rule never to permit any latent cattiness one may have to come to the surface. Men are amused, or disgusted, but never impressed by one woman's unfavorable comment on another.

Many girls today seem to model their lives by those of men. They want to do—and often do—everything like men. Strange they do not emulate them in their attitude toward other men. Men rarely knock their contemporaries, if you notice, especially if they are rivals. They blow up and go for them hammer and tongs sometimes, but they do not indulge in innuendos and spiteful remarks.

Their conduct toward men whom they dislike or distrust may be second only to the hypocrisy. Diplomacy is frequently charged with this crime, yet diplomacy is an honorable method and a good weapon of defense.

Girls of today are not given to cattiness, you say? They are more ruthless than men. And one who is ruthless uses any weapon at hand and breaks every rule of the game—even to bearing false witness against her neighbor—or burning out the truth or a half-truth about her when it's one's business.

THOSE of the masculine gender like women who are square-shooters. They dislike women who are in arms against their own sex. They mistrust the girls who always have an unpleasant thing to say about those who are supposed to be their friends. I don't suppose the attributes that make a girl popular with men are very different from those that make her popular with women. Those that attract men are different, of course, but physical attraction must be backed up by others if one hopes to have any lasting association with a man.

Men like girls, don't forget that. A man may think you best of all, but that doesn't change his attitude toward girls in general, or make him any slower to react to their defense.

When a girl is spiteful or unfair in any way toward another girl the man who hears the attack, or sees an underhand play, is bound to rise valiantly to the defense of the other girl. She gets, not losses, by your attack, and that's something girls do not seem able to grasp. And they should be, because women are not vicious champions of the underdog.

(You long for popularity, be "nice" to men and women equally, and if you long for social success, be sure to cultivate your own sex.)

Postpone Action On Moratorium

SACRAMENTO, March 27.—UP—Final action in the Assembly on a mortgage moratorium measure was withheld tonight pending deliberations of a special sub-committee appointed to consider numerous amendments to the measure submitted by Assemblyman William Mosley Jones, Los Angeles.

When it appeared evident that no agreement could be reached on the measure, the lower House decided to submit the question of amendment to the committee and then set a date, probably within the next two weeks, when final consideration would be given.

Youth Facing Murder Charge In L. A. Holdup

LOS ANGELES, March 27.—UP—An 18-year old Tulsa, Okla., schoolboy, Wendell "Sonny" Kelly, was charged with murder tonight for the alleged "ambush slaying" of Robert R. Rinker, a chauffeur. Rinker was shot when he stepped out of an apartment house entrance shortly after midnight, after visiting two young women friends.

The boy confessed shooting Rinker, police said, after identification of a footprint trapped him into admission he was near the apartment house when the shooting occurred.

He said he shot Rinker when "he refused to hold up his hands."

Maritime Strike Board To Hold Meeting Today

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—UP—Hearings on one wing and a new battle on another set the stage in the Pacific Coast maritime labor troubles today as the personally appointed mediation board of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins prepared for its first meeting tomorrow.

The peace, first "break" in the two weeks' crisis in the shipping industry, came as the Council of Marine Crafts here announced the steamship Felix Taussig in San Francisco bay and the William S. McKenna, in San Pedro, tied up for three days, had been released through an agreement with the Myrtle Line, their owners.

However, it was announced here unions had tightened up on the tanker operators and oil companies. The Masters, Mates and Pilots were said to have issued orders to tugboat operators not to add tankers in moving nor to shift barges to refuel any ship, coast or ocean-going. This, however, will not paralyze shipping, it was explained, because the vessels have other means of obtaining fuel.

The Teamsters' Union at Seattle also was said to have announced no union teamster would be permitted to handle oil package goods to and from the docks, while no fire was served on Puget Sound freight lines and other small water carriers between Seattle and other Sound ports they would not be able to call at piers in Seattle or Tacoma to pick up or discharge oil package goods beyond those now on hand.

Italy Answers Hitler Threat

ROME, March 27.—UP—Premier Mussolini tonight answered Adolf Hitler's threat to build a huge German air force by announcing with the construction of an aerial fleet including super bombers capable of 300 miles an hour.

The announcement, made thru Under Secretary for Aviation G. Valerio, in the chamber of Deputies, revealed large scale production of fighting planes had begun in the past month.

Germany announced the creation of an air fleet before her creation of an army, Valerio said, speaking on the air budget. "This is most significant and in line with the German militarist strategy for a swift, surprise attack should war come."

Richmond Man To Face Murder Charge In Court

Formal charges of murder were sworn against Alexander Katsalis, 40, of 433 Eighteenth street, Richmond, by the widow of Samuel Cambouris, 38, whom Katsalis allegedly killed on March 16, Mrs. Cleo Cambouris, 4125 Market street, Oakland, swore to the complaint.

Katsalis is recovering from a bullet wound in the head suffered when he allegedly attempted to kill himself after shooting Cambouris four times.

Katsalis told police that Cambouris his former partner had "double crossed" him. The men had formerly operated a meat business in Oakland. Katsalis sold his interests to Cambouris and returned to Greece. Later he returned to Richmond and started to work as an employee of his former business partner.

MRS. KELLEY DENIES ALL AS WITNESS

That night, breakfasted at 7:30 A. M., then went to the Sacramento Union, newspaper where she was employed.

With this brief statement she smashed at testimony of Nick Vojdovich, chauffeur, who said he saw Lamson in a parked car on the Stanford campus about 2:30 A. M., May 20—less than seven hours before Mrs. Lamson's body was found in a bathtub of the Lamson home, her skull fractured, a pool of blood on the floor of the bathroom.

IS MARRIED

When Mrs. Kelley was called to the stand by McKenzie she came as "Mrs. Neal A. Simonds." She explained that she married Simonds, Los Angeles insurance salesman, last year in Orange county. Apparently thoroughly at ease, as she testified, Mrs. Kelley flatly denied yet another important link in the State's case. She said she never had telephoned Lamson from San Francisco. A prosecution witness, Mrs. Elsie Hall, Stanford University telephone operator, testified that she overheard a conversation in which Mrs. Kelley called Lamson at his office and during which Lamson told the blonde divorcee "he loved her dearly, and didn't give a damn if the whole world knew it." The call, Mrs. Hall said, came from San Francisco.

"I know absolutely nothing about such a conversation," Mrs. Kelley declared today.

Court Upholds Justice Ruling

MARTINEZ, March 27.—Superior Judge Thomas D. Johnson today had upheld a justice court decision handed down by Justice of the Peace John Moore of Richmond and then appealed by Joseph J. Chebotarewicz of El Cerrito, the plaintiff.

The case involved a suit for $266 filed by Chebotarewicz against his estranged wife, Karen Hedberg. He claimed the sum due him as his share of community property owned by him and his wife prior to their divorce.

Judge Moore decided in favor of the defendant, who was represented by Attorneys Tsar Calfee and E. J. Livingood of Richmond.

Officers Of Bay Counties To Be Guests Of Sheriff

MARTINEZ, March 27.—UP—

Their first gathering in Contra Costa county, more than 100 members of the Bay Counties Peace Officers' Association will assemble tomorrow at the Grinda Country Club for their monthly meeting. Sheriff John A. Miller will be host and he has arranged a dinner that will be composed entirely of Contra Costa products.

Chief of Police William Quinn of San Francisco, president of the association, announced today that the theme of the meeting will center on discussions on the crime conferences held at Sacramento last week by the California Sheriff's Association and the governor's crime commission and bills pending before the Legislature dealing with crime.

Among prominently known members of the association who will attend the convention are Chief J. J. Harney of Pinnagame, secretary of the association; E. Raymond Cate, chief of state motor vehicle department; District Attorney Earl W. S. Alameda county and Chief Paul Wallman of Oakland.

Others who have accepted invitations to attend are Superior Judge Anthony Caminetti of Jackson, Amador county, who is sitting in superior court here; District Attorney Francis Healey; Fred Lober, inspector of the motor vehicle department of this district; Sheriff Sellner of Marin county and Chief Black of San Jose.

All Contra Costa constables and chiefs of police have been invited by Miller to attend.

Chicken Thefts May Cause Man To Leave U. S.

PORTLAND, Ore., March 27.—UP—If Stephen Fink, 37, who came to the United States 36 years ago, had not hid in a ditch and cackled like a chicken, he would not now be awaiting deportation to Yugoslavia.

State police heard the cackling near Medford. They found Fink concealed under his coat and brush, decoying chickens within reach where he could plop a gunnysack over them.

Fink got 30 days in jail and Immigration Inspector Roy Norene investigated and learned he entered this country illegally in 1899. In 1907 and in 1919, while in the United States he served three terms in California prisons for burglary. While out of it, he served in the Austrian army in 1904 and waited out the World War in Mexico.

According to Sodern, Bronson attempted to drive away after the mishap without paying for the damage. Sodern then assertedly fired a gun into Bronson's tires to prevent him from leaving and, according to sheriff's deputies, Bronson then became enraged and attacked the couple with a hammer. The woman was treated at Richmond Cottage hospital for scalp wounds.

Deputy District Attorney Homer Patterson represented the county while Bronson has retained William Pierce, well known Oakland attorney.

LOBBYIST IS SCORED FOR ACTIVITIES

Asked if he considered the report of railroad fares in the nature of a bribe, Anthony replied:

"No, I don't think it was considered in the nature of a bribe—just some assistance in meeting expenses."

"What about the motor tables?" Senator Walter McGovern asked. "Well, I understand they were to be used as a method of passing money over the table to legislators in a legitimate manner," Anthony said.

ASKED SUPPORT

Anthony testified Elliott had urged all tracking organizations to rally behind him as their legislative representative. To aid him would require about $25,000 to handle the bill. Later he reduced the ante to $15,000, which he said would be used for educational purposes.

English King Takes Hand In European Crisis

LONDON, March 27.—UP—King George V took a hand in the European crisis today, when he conferred at length with Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald at Buckingham Palace on the international Simon-Denis armistice to Berlin.

The Prime Minister called at the palace at 5:30 P. M. Shortly after Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, returned by airplane from Berlin. He was understood to have made a preliminary report to the monarch on the German conversations, and then hurried off to an extraordinary session of the Cabinet in the House of Commons.

Sir John, who with Captain Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, talked with Reichsmarshal Adolf Hitler on Monday and Tuesday exploring the possibilities of an accord to preserve peace, returned via Amsterdam at 3:45 P. M. He said the position at present was too delicate and inconclusive to discuss with the press. Sir John met with the Cabinet at 6:15 and reported fully on his proceedings with Hitler.

BIG INCREASE IN SURTAXES IS EXPECTED

WASHINGTON, March 27.—UP—A battle to force sharp increases in income and surtaxes broke on the floor of the Senate late today delaying final action on repeal of the "pink slip" tax legislation already voted by the House.

After the Senate had rejected its substitute proposal to provide even wider publicity of income tax returns, Senator Robert LaFollette, D-Wis., offered an amendment which would yield the treasury $275,000,000 a year in increased tax revenues.

A point of order was raised against the amendment by Senator Pat Harrison, Democrat, Missouri, chairman of the Finance committee and a bitter floor fight on the issue was in prospect for tomorrow.

LaFollette's amendment would raise the normal income tax rate from five to six per cent and the surtax rate from 59 to 71 per cent. It would reduce exemptions from $2500 to $2000 and $1,000 to $800.

The 51 to 25 vote through which the Senate defeated LaFollette's substitute was regarded as a test vote on the measure to scrap the "pink slip" surtaxes. Democrats, Republicans and one Progressive voted "aye" while 42 Democrats and nine Republicans voted "no."

An amendment by Senator Edward Canning, Democrat, Colorado, directing that tax returns be made available to State officials, was accepted by Harrison.

"CRACKING DOWN"

Los Angeles is "cracking down" hard on drunken drivers. Not content with taking the driver's license away for a limited period, the rule now in vogue is to take the car and confiscate it. That may be a rather severe penalty, but the situation has grown so menacing and the loss of life and property so appalling that drastic action has become absolutely necessary. If the invoking of this new policy were general it would not be long before beneficial results would be apparent.

Barring the streets and highways to people with their skins full of liquor will make traveling more safe for those who exercise caution in driving.

In this section of the State there seems to be a sentiment developing for the doing away of white cars and motorcycles and bright uniforms, which experience has demonstrated, have only served to hinder the State Highway Patrol in efficient performance of its duty. The former methods employed of lying in wait and resorting to other devices to catch the motor law violator, fell into disrepute, but their resurrection and application again may prove helpful.

The Contra Costa county death toll thus far this year is seven and some of these deaths may be directly laid at the door of the drunken driver.

A combination of former methods with the Los Angeles plan might work wonders here. Any way it would do no harm to test it out, for it is certain we cannot do, like in Russia—put the inebriated driver against a wall and have a firing squad pump him full of lead, even though he is a potential and often an actual murderer.

at an anti-Lithuanian demonstration in Wittenbergplatz, in Berlin's fashionable west end.

A determined band of 200 men broke through the first police cordon and raced one block nearer the Lithuanian legation before they were again checked. They milled about, in ugly mood, shouting: "Down with Lithuania! Down with Lithuanian villains! Set our brothers free!"

HITLER CHEERED
They sang "Deutschland Ueber Alles" and the "Horst Wessel" Nazi anthem, lustily, while a large portable automobile siren shrieked ceaselessly.

Another crowd assembled before the Chancellery and cheered Reichsmarshal Adolf Hitler, shouting: "Down with Lithuania! Hitler appeared at a window and acknowledged the cheers.

Other demonstrations took place in the famous Lustgarten, in front of the former Imperial palace and other public squares.

Damage Claims Of Widow Denied By Court Jury

MARTINEZ, March 27.—A jury in the court of Superior Judge T. D. Johnston late this afternoon returned a verdict denying damages of $75,475 asked by Mrs. Elizabeth Schmidt of Pittsburg for her three children against the Pittsburg Security Investment Co. The trial was under way for more than a week and marked the second time that a jury has returned a verdict in favor of the defendant.

James F. Hoey, former district attorney, represented the Pittsburg company in both suits.

Mrs. Schmidt and her children had asked the huge amount for the death of her husband, Frank Schmidt. The latter died from a fractured skull, suffered in a fall, Mrs. Schmidt and her attorneys had alleged that through the negligence of the Pittsburg company, Schmidt fell on the steps of a building owned by the plaintiff company, and sustained fatal injuries.

Hoey, however, contended that on the night Schmidt was injured, he fell on the sidewalk, and not in the building proper.

I was working way late at the office one night and ran out of cigarettes. When Jim the watchman came through I tackled him for a smoke.

"Sure," says Jim, and he handed over a pack of Chesterfields. "Go ahead, Mr. Kent, take three or four."

Jim said he'd smoked a lot of cigarettes in his time, but he'd put Chesterfield up in front of any of 'em when it came to taste.

... "and they ain't a bit strong either," is the way Jim put it.

That was the first Chesterfield I ever smoked. And I'm right there with him, too, when he says it's a ding good cigarette.
